

REFERENCES

- [1] G.J. Shirek and B.A. Lassiter, “Solar plant modeling impacts on distribution systems PV case study” in Rural Electric Power Conference (REPC), 2012 IEEE. doi: 10.1109/REPCon,2012.6194569
- [2] M. J. E. Alam, et al, “An Approach for Online Assessment of Rooftop Solar PV Impacts on Low-Voltage Distribution Networks” in Sustainable Energy. IEEE Transactions on (Volume:5 , No: 2), April 2014
- [3] Fares, R , “Renewable Energy Intermittency Explained: Challenges, Solutions, and Opportunities”. Retrieved March, 2015 Available: <http://blogs.scientificamerican.com/plugged-in/renewable-energy-intermittency-explained-challenges-solutions-and-opportunities/>
- [4] Sri Lanka Sustainable Energy Authority, “Solar resource maps & interpretation” in Solar Resource Atlas of Sri Lanka, 2013
- [5] Moaveni, H., et al, “Quantifying solar power variability for a large central PV plant and small distributed PV plant” in Photovoltaic Specialists Conference (PVSC) IEEE 39th, 2013
- [6] B. Tamimi, et al, “System Stability Impact of Large-Scale and Distributed Solar Photovoltaic Generation: The Case of Ontario, Canada” in Sustainable Energy. IEEE Transactions on (Volume:4 , Issue: 3), 2013. Doi: 10.1109/TSTE.2012.2235151
- [7] M.J. Hossain, et al, “Impacts of wind and solar integrations on the dynamic operations of distribution systems” in Universities Power Engineering Conference (AUPEC), 2011 IEEE.
- [8] S. Kabir, et al, “Impact of large-scale photovoltaic system on short and long term voltage stability in sub-transmission network” in Power Engineering Conference (AUPEC), 2013 Australasian Universities IEEE.