

References

- Baba, K., Enbutsu, I., Matuzaki, H. & Nogita, S., 1990. Intelligent support system for water and sewage treatment plants which included past history learning function – coagulation injection guidance system using neural net algorithm.
- Baxter, C. W., 1998. Full scale artificial neural network modeling of enhanced coagulation. M.Sc. Thesis, University of Alberta.
- Baxter, C.W., Stanley, S.J., Zhang, Q. & Smith, D.W., 2002. Developing artificial neural network models of water treatment processes: A guide for utilities, Engineering Science, p.201-211.
- Bernazeau, F., Pierrone, P. & Duguet, J.P., 1992. Interest in using a streamline current detector for automatic coagulant dose control. Water Supply, 10 (4), 87-96.
- BiPOM Electronics, Inc., 2005. Microcontroller interface techniques, [Online]. Available at: <http://www.bipom.com> [accessed June 2007].
- Chazal, D., 2006. Controlling oxygen sensors with an automotive microcontroller, Masters Degree Project. Royal Institute of Technology.
- Dentel, K.S., 1995. Use of streaming current detector in coagulation monitoring and control, Water Sensors and Research and Technologies –Aqua, 44, p.70-79.
- Emunrud, A., 2002. Programmable logic controllers.
- Evans, J., Enoch, C., Johnson, M. & Williams, P., 1998. Intelligent based auto coagulation control applied to a water treatment works. In international conference on control.
- Gagnon, C., Grandjean, B.P.A. & Thibault J., 1997. Modeling of coagulant dosage in a water treatment plant.
- Global Water Instrumentation Inc., 2007. Turbidity sensor users guide, [Online]. Available at: <http://www.globalw.com> [accessed April 2007]
- Hydroinformatics Delft, 2000. Use of artificial neural networks and fuzzy logic for integrated water management.

- Jahan, K., 2003. Measurement of water quality parameters.
- Juuso, E., Viirret, K. & Piironen, M., 2003. Intelligent methods in dosing control of water treatment.
- Length counter using pic microcontroller*, 2005. (Project report on Arthur C. Clarke institute for modern technologies).
- Lind, C., 1994. Coagulation control and optimization: Part One. Public Works for October, p.56-57.
- Lind, C., 1994. Coagulation control and optimization: Part Two. Public Works for Novemberr, p.32-33.
- Masson, M.H., Grandvalet, Y. & Lyngaard-Jensen, A., 1999. Software sensor design based on empirical data ecological modeling.
- Microchip, 2006. 8-bit PIC microcontroller solutions[Online].Available at: <http://www.microchip.com> [accessed June 2007].
- Mirsepasi, A., Cathers, B. & Dharmappa, H.B., 1995. Application of artificial neural networks to the real time operation of water treatment plants. In international joint conference on neural networks.
- Pask, D., 1993. Jar testing: Getting started on a low budget, Technical Brief – spring 2005, Volume 5, Issue 1, p.5-10.
- Trautmann, T. & Denoeux, T., 1995. A constructive algorithm for S.O.M. applied to water quality monitoring. Intelligent engineering systems through artificial neural networks, p. 17-22.
- Valentin, N., Denoeux, T. & Fotoohi, F., 2000. Modeling of coagulant dosage in a water treatment plant.
- Valentin, N. & Denoeux, T., 2002. A neural network-based software sensor for coagulation control in a water treatment plant.